Disney's The Princess and the Frog subtitled (U) 1 hour 37 mins

<http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/princessfrog.html>

Animated comedy set in New Orleans. A modern twist on a classic tale, about a beautiful little girl named Tiana, and a frog Prince who is desperate to be human once more. After a fateful kiss, the pair find themselves on a hilarious adventure across Louisiana. a return to the form of Disney's early 1990s classics. "Best Disney animated film in years. The animation is gorgeous, the heroine feisty and the animals amusing"

Invictus subtitled (12a) 2 hours 13 mins

<http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/invictus.html>

Drama from director Clint Eastwood, starring Morgan Freeman and Matt Damon. The true story of how Nelson Mandela joined forces with the captain of South Africa's rugby team, Francois Pienaar, to help unite their country. As newly elected President, Mandela believes that the universal language of sport can bring people together in the wake of apartheid. As a result, the nation's underdog rugby team make an unlikely challenge on the 1995 World Cup Championship.

Avatar subtitled in digital 3D! (12a) 2 hour 41 mins

<http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/avatar.html>

Ten years in the making, 'Avatar' incorporates the latest CGI technology to transport the audience into a spectacular alien world, promising an unprecedented cinema experience. James Cameron directs this adventure starring Sam Worthington as Jake Sully, an ex-Marine who is selected to participate in the Avatar programme, in which genetically-engineered human beings are sent to explore a small moon called Pandora. There, the indigenous Navi tribe of three-metre-high human-like beings have long lived a peaceful existence. Jake meets Navi princess Neytiri (Zoe Saldana), falls in love and is torn between his mission and the plight of the aliens...

Five stars! Empire & Total Film mags. "An audacious, awe-inspiring work of modern art that reinvents and redesigns the whole process of sitting in a darkened room staring up at a screen"

Toy Story 2 subtitled - in digital 3D! (U) 1 hour 32 mins

<http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/toystory23d.html>

Pixar's masterpiece returns to the big screen, in stunning digital 3D. When Woody accidentally falls into the hands of a toy collector, he discovers that the toys are being held against their will – and will never be played with by children. As Buzz Lightyear comes to the rescue, will the toys escape to the safety of Andy's house? One of the best sequels ever made, and now it's even better – as you get to relive the adventure in state-of-the-art 3D.

Five stars! Empire & Total Film mags. "The kind of exhilarating cinema experience that leaves you gasping in admiration and wanting more".

IMPORTANT!

We receive accessible listings directly from cinemas. Unless urgent amendments are required, listings are updated on the website every Thursday. We take great care to ensure the listings are timely and accurate but can take NO RESPONSIBILITY for postponed or cancelled shows. If cinemas inform us of changes, we will tell you via the yourlocalcinema.com website. If they don't inform us, we can't inform you.

Many cinemas schedules are "SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTIFICATION". Sometimes the files necessary for a subtitled or described film are not available, or are not delivered to the cinema on time. The only way to be 100% sure is to check with the ACTUAL cinema before you plan a visit. But DOUBLE check, preferably with a manager. We recommend that you should always request confirmation that a show is definitely on.

We cannot provide cinema tickets. Please contact your cinema directly for these. For suggestions, corrections or just to contact us please visit:

NEWS:

November 2009 saw the first 3D release with English language subtitles – Disney's A Christmas Carol. How appropriate, given that the Dickens story was an innovative, socially responsible tale of family, sharing and Christmas charity. Hard on its heels came a subtitled 3D version of James Cameron's Avatar. Throughout November and December, almost every capable cinema screened both these films with subtitles, many in 3D.

Disney Press Release here: <http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/christmascarol.PR.html>

Winner!

Your Local Cinema .com was successful in winning some high-profile awards in 2009: the British Telecom 'BT Remote Workers' Award' and the Daily Mail 'People's Choice' Enterprise Award.

And the service made the final three in the 'Best Arts Project' category of the National Lottery Awards 2009, broadcast live on BBC1, beating hundreds of other Lottery-funded projects, with many thousands of public votes. If you voted for us - THANKS!

And, on a personal level, our founder Dean won the 'Student of the Year' Award! And he recently won a goldfish at the local fair! Good year!

The UK leads the world in accessible cinema – subtitled and audio described films for people with hearing or sight loss.

Most UK cinemas, including all 3D and digital-equipped sites, now have facilities for subtitles, and more than 300 have audio description facilities.

UK distributors ensure that most popular releases are available in both audio described and subtitled versions for 35mm and digital release. The top 20 UK releases of 2009 were available with subtitles & audio description. 41 of the top 50 were available. 71 out of the top 100 were available.

Most cinemas utilise their access facilities regularly and every week there are more than 500 English language subtitled shows, and thousands more audio described performances.

Most cinemas are now equipped with new digital projection equipment. These digital projection systems have built in subtitle readers. Subtitle 'files' are available for almost all popular cinema releases, which can be 'read' by digital projection systems. Some of these cinemas regularly schedule subtitled shows.

It is hoped that the 'access' features of these digital projectors will be utilised, to enable people with hearing or sight loss to enjoy digital cinema, but there's no guarantee that it will happen. We urge organisations, groups and individuals to create total awareness of this access issue, to ensure it is addressed as soon as possible. Please contact digitally-equipped cinemas in your area and request that they utilise the built in 'access' features of digital projectors!

Note: as with DVD releases, the film - on disc, or hard disk - needs to have a subtitle track included for it to be broadcast - almost all popular releases now have that track.

"Have you ever tried to lip-read a masked super hero or villain? Or an animated rat, fish, car or robot? Without subtitles we just watch the pictures and guess the story"

"After losing most of my sight four years ago I gave up on cinema - only to discover audio description some months later. I've since watched many more films. Watching 'Avatar' I felt just like one of the crowd, reacting with amazement just like the other people in the cinema. I actually felt like I had my vision back."

"I have lost my sight. You think I can't enjoy the cinema? Imagine the scariest film you know, only SCARIER!"

"I enjoyed A Christmas Carol a lot. I can hear well with my digital hearing aids, compared to many deaf people I know, but the unfamiliar, oldie-style Dickensian words would have been lost on me without subtitles."

"My profoundly deaf mother had given up trying to lip-read movie stars years ago. At a subtitled show her eyes flickered into life.

Two glorious hours and finally my mother and I have rekindled our cinema habit. She is now in her seventies, I'm approaching my forties. It may have been some time coming, but damn was it worth it!"

"My Granddad was a big film fan – Dad too – and I grew up with books and magazines on films and cinema in general. But being deaf, thanks to meningitis, I could never get the full cinema experience. My Granddad, also very deaf due to his advancing years, used to say it was better for people like us a hundred years ago when silent films were around as they had caption cards on the screen! I missed out on many films at the cinema, which I have since watched with subtitles on DVD. I believe that if my Granddad was alive today he'd be joining my Dad and me on our regular trips to the movies because captioned cinema has returned!"

"I know quite a few people who, like me, have become disabled in the prime of their lives. I served in Iraq, came home last year with permanent damage to my hearing. I can still enjoy music, it's just not as clear as it used to be. I find I now read a lot of song lyrics! Never really bothered before. Same with films. I can still enjoy them with a little 'assistance'. In this case, subtitles. I only go to the cinema now if the film is subtitled. Thankfully most are these days."

"Audio described cinema is wonderful, not just because it allows me to enjoy movies but to discuss them with sighted friends afterwards. Through cinema audio description, I have been able to follow up the recommendation of a friend who gushed about the beauty of the visuals in Volver. Conversely, I have been able to return the favour by plugging the striking images in The Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford. It doesn't matter that I couldn't 'see' them – the description was so vivid that I can still imagine Brad Pitt shooting into the ice, causing a puff of smoke to rise, or Casey Affleck in a rocking chair. When accompanying sighted friends, I can enjoy the car chase in Casino Royale and the decapitation by helicopter blade in 28 Weeks Later, relying on my memories of being a sighted gorehound."

About cinema subtitles & audio description.

Cinema subtitles/captions are displayed along the bottom of the cinema screen. They include the spoken text as well as descriptions of sounds such as 'door creaks', 'footsteps approaching', 'gunshot' etc.

Cinema audio description is a recorded narration which explains - in gaps in the dialogue - what's happening on screen. It's delivered through wireless headphones - only the wearer hears the audio description soundtrack. One blind cinema-goer has likened the experience to listening to a Harry Potter audio book, but with all the actors voicing their own parts, and the addition of the film soundtrack - in fabulous surround sound.

"It's the accessible cinema experience: SEE the dialogue! HEAR the action!"
