Shutter Island subtitled (15) 2 hour 16 mins
<http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/shutterisland.html>

Psychological thriller directed by Martin Scorsese, starring Leonardo DiCaprio. U.S. Marshal Teddy Daniels is assigned to investigate the mysterious disappearance of a patient from Shutter Island Hospital for the criminally insane. However, he soon wonders if the hospital doctors have lured him to the island as part of a twisted plot and fears for his own sanity...

And more subtitled films!

On release in many cinemas:
foreign language films with English subtitles.

Latest releases include:

Micmacs

(French with English Subtitles) A visually inventive tour de force. With 'Micmacs', Jean-Pierre Jeunet ('Amelie') sets his sights on the international arms industry. French superstar Danny Boon plays Basil, the victim of a drive-by shooting who, on leaving hospital, teams up with an ex-con and his eccentric friends to exact revenge on a group of arms dealers. What unfolds confirms Jeunet's place as one of French cinema's true visionaries.

Ponyo

"As visually alluring a fairytale as you are ever likely to see." (Dubbed in English, but some cinemas will show it in the original Japanese, with English Subtitles - check local listings).

A Prophet

(French with English Subtitles) "An endlessly powerful and absorbing tapestry of criminal life, which has all the epic human drama of such classics as SCARFACE and THE GODFATHER".

The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo

(Swedish with English Subtitles) This crime thriller has broken all box office records across Scandinavia. Complex, intelligent and challenging, this a tense slice of Swedish drama that is a cut above the rest.

The Headless Woman

(12a) (Spanish with English subtitles) Disturbing and deeply mysterious, this tale of ghosts and guilt is nothing short of a masterpiece (Guardian). Verónica is a well-to-do, middle-aged dentist whose life becomes plagued with doubt following her involvement in a possible hit-and-run accident.

My Name Is Khan

subtitled (12a) Karan Johar directs Indian superstars Shahrukh Khan (SRK) and Kajol Devgan in a film controversial for its plotlines involving US homeland security and terrorism. SRK plays an Indian man with Asperger's syndrome who, for reasons revealed as the film unfolds, is on a quest to personally deliver a message to the US president. Note: This film is showing in cinemas nationwide in Hindi language with English subtitles. But much of the film is also in English language, with no subtitles. Cinemas can also show a version that is accessible to people with hearing loss, with English subtitles for the English-spoken parts also.

Departures (Chinese with English Subtitles)

Thirst (Korean with English Subtitles)

The White Ribbon (German with English Subtitles)

IMPORTANT!

We receive accessible listings directly from cinemas. Unless urgent amendments are required, listings are updated on the website every Thursday. We take great care to ensure the listings are timely and accurate but can take NO RESPONSIBILITY for postponed or cancelled shows. If cinemas inform us of changes, we will tell you via the yourlocalcinema.com website. If they don't inform us, we can't inform you.

Many cinemas schedules are "SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTIFICATION". Sometimes the files necessary for a subtitled or described film are not available, or are not delivered to the cinema on time. The only way to be 100% sure is to check with the ACTUAL cinema before you plan a visit. But DOUBLE check, preferably with a manager. We recommend that you should always request confirmation that a show is definitely on.

We cannot provide cinema tickets. Please contact your cinema directly for these. For suggestions, corrections or just to contact us please visit:

Most cinemas are now equipped with new digital projection equipment. These digital projection systems have built-in subtitle readers.

Any cinema with 3D or digital facilities can screen most of the latest cinema releases with subtitles.

Subtitle 'files' are available for almost all popular cinema releases (including 3D films). These files can be 'read' by digital projection systems, overlaying subtitles on the cinema screen, to enable people with hearing loss to enjoy cinema.

Please contact digitally-equipped cinemas in your area and request that they utilise the built in subtitle features of digital projectors!

Note: as with DVD releases, the film needs to have a subtitle track included for it to be broadcast. These days almost all popular releases are now released digitally, with a subtitle track.

Most film distributors ensure that their most popular releases are available with subtitles. The box office top 20 films of 2009 were available. 41 of the top 50 and 71 out of the top 100 were available.

In the UK most subtitle-equipped cinemas utilise their subtitle facilities regularly and every week there are more than 550 English language subtitled shows nationwide.

Although most popular cinema releases are available with subtitles, not all 'subtitle' equipped cinemas show all available films. And many shows are at unsuitable times. Why? And what can we do about it? Please read HERE: <http://www.yourlocalcinema.com/explanation.html>

"Have you ever tried to lip-read a masked super hero or villain? Or an animated rat, fish, car or robot? Without subtitles we just watch the pictures and guess the story"

"After losing most of my sight four years ago I gave up on cinema - only to discover audio description some months later. I've since watched many more films. Watching 'Avatar' I felt just like one of the crowd, reacting with amazement just like the other people in the cinema. I actually felt like I had my vision back."

"I have lost my sight. You think I can't enjoy the cinema? Imagine the scariest film you know, only SCARIER!"

"I enjoyed A Christmas Carol a lot. I can hear well with my digital hearing aids, compared to many deaf people I know, but the unfamiliar, oldie-style Dickensian words would have been lost on me without subtitles."

"My profoundly deaf mother had given up trying to lip-read movie stars years ago. At a subtitled show her eyes flickered into life. Two glorious hours and finally my mother and I have rekindled our cinema habit. She is now in her seventies, I'm approaching my forties. It may have been some time coming, but damn was it worth it!"

"My Granddad was a big film fan – Dad too – and I grew up with books and magazines on films and cinema in general. But being deaf, thanks to meningitis, I could never get the full cinema experience. My Granddad, also very deaf due to his advancing years, used to say it was better for people like us a hundred years ago when silent films were around as they had caption cards on the screen! I missed out on many films at the cinema, which I have since watched with subtitles on DVD. I believe that if my Granddad was alive today he'd be joining my Dad and me on our regular trips to the movies because captioned cinema has returned!"

"I know quite a few people who, like me, have become disabled in the prime of their lives. I served in Iraq, came home last year with permanent damage to my hearing. I can still enjoy music, it's just not as clear as it used to be. I find I now read a lot of song lyrics! Never really bothered before. Same with films. I can still enjoy them with a little 'assistance'. In this case, subtitles. I only go to the cinema now if the film is subtitled. Thankfully most are these days."

"Audio described cinema is wonderful, not just because it allows me to enjoy movies but to discuss them with sighted friends afterwards. Through cinema audio description, I have been able to follow up the recommendation of a friend who gushed about the beauty of the visuals in Volver. Conversely, I have been able to return the favour by plugging the striking images in The Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford. It doesn't matter that I couldn't 'see' them – the description was so vivid that I can still imagine Brad Pitt shooting into the ice, causing a puff of smoke to rise, or Casey Affleck in a rocking chair. When accompanying sighted friends, I can enjoy the car chase in Casino Royale and the decapitation by helicopter blade in 28 Weeks Later, relying on my memories of being a sighted gorehound."

About cinema subtitles & audio description.

Cinema subtitles/captions are displayed along the bottom of the cinema screen. They include the spoken text as well as descriptions of sounds such as 'door creaks', 'footsteps approaching', 'gunshot' etc.

Cinema audio description is a recorded narration which explains - in gaps in the dialogue - what's happening on screen. It's delivered through wireless headphones - only the wearer hears the audio description soundtrack. One blind cinema-goer has likened the experience to listening to a Harry Potter audio book, but with all the actors voicing their own parts, and the addition of the film soundtrack - in fabulous surround sound.

"It's the accessible cinema experience: SEE the dialogue! HEAR the action!"
